Ninety Per Cent of it Really Caused From Poor Digestion.

Real organic heart trouble is incurable, but carrely one case in a hundred is organic. The action of the heart and stomach are both outrolled by the same great nerves, the sympa-hetic and pneumogastric, and when the stomach fails to procely digest the food and it lies in the stomach farmenting, gases are formed which distend the organ, causing pressure on the heart and image, causing palpitation, irregularity, and shortness of breath.

The danger from this condition is that, the continued disturbance of the heart zooner or later may cause real organic heart trouble, and, in fact, frequently does so.

Furthermore, poor digestion makes the blood thin and watery, and deficient in rel corpuscles, and this further irritates and weakers the heart.

The most a nable thing to do for heart trouble is to chauce the direction and assimilation of the food.
